The Craft

Dakti's textile collection focuses predominantly on eri silk, featuring handmade wristbands, necklaces and earrings in diverse designs, crafted by skilled artisans. Eri silk, is also known as "Peace silk or Ahimsa silk" because of the age-old practice of extracting silk from the cocoon without harming or killing the silkworm. The entire journey from farm to fibre is handmade and organic using only natural dyes.

Care Instructions

Do not scrub vigorously; gentle cleaning is recommended.

Avoid using bleach or any harsh chemicals that could damage the fabric.

Use a mild detergent to preserve the quality and color of the garment.

Hand wash delicately to ensure the longevity of the fabric and its delicate fibers.

Dry the garment away from direct sunlight in a shaded area to prevent fading and potential damage from UV rays.

For best results, press the garment with a warm iron when it is still slightly damp to smooth out wrinkles effectively while preserving the fabric's texture and shape.

About Dakti Craft

Dakti (derived from the Khasi language spoken in Meghalaya) can be interpreted as –

Impressions of the Hand / To protect the Hand / Handmade.

Dak_ti presents a unique range of hand crafted products made from natural materials.

NO HURRY: We respect the seasons and work around nature's patterns.

NO WORRY: All our raw-materials are sourced locally.

NO MORE: We make a limited range so we can live in harmony with nature.

NO OTHER: Our process is natural and handmade so each product is unique.

NO FRILLS: We believe in simplicity even in our packaging and publicity.

NO BIG DEAL: Everything comes at a cost and one should pay a fair price.
